Undergraduate Programs

The University of Denver's Daniels College of Business requires a secondary admission process for students interested in pursuing a business major. For most students, the application process and admission decision will occur early in the fall quarter of a student's second year. The selection process is competitive, and admission is not guaranteed. Daniels looks for well-rounded students and embraces diversity and academic excellence to create a rich and engaged learning community.

Students may not declare a business major until admitted into Daniels College of Business. By submitting this form, you are notifying the Office of Undergraduate Programs of your interest in applying to the Daniels College of Business. The Office of Undergraduate Programs will provide student's access to their blackboard site and include students on all communication related to Daniel's secondary admission process.
